The killing of Michael Brown in Ferguson, Missouri, in 2014 sparked a wave of activism across the country. Activists took to the streets to protest police brutality and demand justice for Brown and other victims of police violence. The Ferguson protests were a watershed moment for the Black Lives Matter movement, and they inspired a new generation of activists to fight for social justice.

In the years since Ferguson, activism has become an increasingly popular career path for young people. There are now a wide range of careers in activism, from community organizing to policy making. Activists work in a variety of settings, including non-profit organizations, government agencies, and schools.

This book profiles 10 activists who are working to make a difference in the world. These activists come from a variety of backgrounds and have different areas of expertise. However, they all share a common passion for justice and a commitment to making the world a better place.

The activists profiled in this book include:

- DeRay Mckesson, a Black Lives Matter activist and co-founder of Campaign Zero
- Alicia Garza, a Black Lives Matter activist and co-founder of the Black Lives Matter Global Network
- Brittany Packnett Cunningham, a Black Lives Matter activist and co-founder of the Movement for Black Lives
- Patrisse Cullors, a Black Lives Matter activist and co-founder of the Black Lives Matter Global Network
- Opal Tometi, a Black Lives Matter activist and co-founder of the Black Lives Matter Global Network
- Sybrina Fulton, the mother of Trayvon Martin and founder of the Trayvon Martin Foundation
- Lucia McBath, the mother of Jordan Davis and founder of the Jordan Davis Foundation
- Lezley McSpadden, the mother of Michael Brown and founder of the Michael Brown Foundation
- Gwen Carr, the mother of Eric Garner and founder of the Eric Garner Foundation
- Tamika Mallory, a social justice activist and co-founder of the March for Black Women

These activists are just a few examples of the many people who are working to make the world a more just and equitable place. Their stories are inspiring and their work is essential. This book is a must-read for anyone who is interested in activism or social justice.

Careers in Activism

There are a wide range of careers in activism, from community organizing to policy making. Activists work in a variety of settings, including non-profit organizations, government agencies, and schools.

Some common careers in activism include:

- Community organizer: Community organizers work with community members to identify problems and develop solutions. They may organize protests, rallies, and other events to raise awareness of an issue and build support for change.
- Policy advocate: Policy advocates work to influence public policy by lobbying elected officials, writing policy briefs, and testifying before legislative committees.
- Educator: Educators teach about social issues and activism in schools, universities, and community centers. They may develop curriculum, lead workshops, and facilitate discussions.
- Researcher: Researchers study social issues and activism to develop new knowledge and inform policy. They may conduct surveys, interviews, and other forms of research.
- Organizer: Organizers plan and execute events, such as protests, rallies, and conferences. They may also work with community members to build relationships and develop strategies for change.

These are just a few examples of the many different careers in activism. If you are passionate about social justice and want to make a difference in the world, there is a career in activism that is right for you.

How to Get Started in Activism

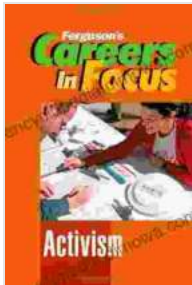

There are many ways to get started in activism. You can volunteer with a local organization, attend a protest or rally, or start your own campaign. No matter how you choose to get involved, there are a few things you can do to make sure you are successful.

Here are a few tips for getting started in activism:

- Find your passion: What are you most passionate about? What issues do you care about most deeply? Once you know what you are passionate about, you can start to look for opportunities to get involved.
- Get involved: There are many ways to get involved in activism. You can volunteer with a local organization, attend a protest or rally, or start your own campaign. No matter how you choose to get involved, make sure you are doing something that you are passionate about and that you believe in.
- Learn: Activism is a complex and ever-changing field. It is important to stay up-to-date on the latest issues and trends. You can do this by reading books and articles, attending workshops and conferences, and talking to other activists.

- Build relationships: Activism is a team sport. It is important to build relationships with other activists and organizations. This will help you to learn from others, share resources, and collaborate on projects.
- Be persistent: Activism is not always easy. There will be times when you feel discouraged or frustrated. But it is important to be persistent. Never give up on your dreams of making the world a better place.

Activism is a powerful tool for change. It can be used to raise awareness of important issues, build support for new policies, and hold those in power accountable. If you are passionate about social justice and want to make a difference in the world, activism is a great way to get involved.
