Everyone Has a Home: Little World, Everyone Everywhere is a beautiful children's book that celebrates diversity and inclusion. The book features children from all over the world, living in a variety of homes. Some children live in houses, some live in apartments, some live in tents, and some live in boats. But no matter where they live, all of the children in the book have one thing in common: they are all loved by their families.

The book is written by Susan Verde, who is also the author of the bestselling children's books The Night Before Kindergarten and I Am Yoga. The book is illustrated by Peter H. Reynolds, who has illustrated many award-winning children's books, including The Dot and Ish.

The illustrations in Everyone Has a Home are simply stunning. Reynolds uses bright colors and bold brushstrokes to create a world that is both inviting and inclusive. The children in the book are all different races, ethnicities, and abilities, and they all live in different types of homes. This diversity is celebrated in the book, and it sends a powerful message to children that everyone is special and deserves to be loved.

The text of the book is also very well-written. Verde uses simple language that is easy for children to understand, and she conveys a powerful message about the importance of home and family. The book is perfect for reading aloud to children of all ages, and it is sure to become a favorite in your family's library.

Everyone Has a Home is a book that every child should read. It is a book that celebrates diversity and inclusion, and it sends a powerful message about the importance of home and family. This book is a must-have for any family's library.
