The Tour De France was first held in 1903, and has been held every year since, except for during the two World Wars. The race has been won by some of the greatest cyclists of all time, including Jacques Anquetil, Eddy Merckx, and Miguel Indurain. The current record for the most Tour De France victories is held by Lance Armstrong, who won the race seven times in a row from 1999 to 2005. However, Armstrong's titles were later stripped due to doping violations.

The Tour De France is a race that is full of drama, excitement, and heartbreak. The riders often have to battle extreme weather conditions, mechanical problems, and injuries. And, of course, there is always the threat of crashing. But despite all of the challenges, the riders keep coming back for more. That's because the Tour De France is more than just a race. It's a symbol of human endurance and achievement.
